Marie ClaireEric Parsa died nearly a year ago after being detained by sheriff's deputies Government officials bitterly accused the Trump administration on Friday of deceuicing states about the amount of Covid-19 vaccine they can expect to receive as they increase vaccinations for senior citizens and others. But the government attributes the anger to confusion and misguided expectations from the states. Meanwhile, the race between the vaccine and the virus may be about to heat up: The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention has warned that the new, more infectious option, which is first seen in the UK, is likely to become the dominant version in the US by March. The CDC said the variant is about 50% more contagious than the virus that causes the majority of cases in this country. We want to raise the alarm, said Dr. Jay Butler, deputy director of infectious diseases. The clash over the pace of the government's Covid-19 vaccine threatens to escalate tensions between the Trump administration and some states, which are responsible for the relatively slow start of vaccination on the road against a scourge that has killed more than 390,000 Americans. Oregon announced earlier this week that it would expand vaccine conditions to about 760,000 residents of 65 and older, as well as teachers and childcare providers, because of what it said would increase the distribution of the vaccine. HBOon the evening of Jan. 7, a day after Trump's army of fanatics - on the president's orders - stormed the U.S. Capitol on a mission to overthrow the government, threatened a congressman and killed a police officer in the trial, Kellyanne Conway issued a statement on Twitter. In it, one of Trump's most loyal and half-trusted advisers condemned the events as outrageous and invincible, followed by a comic lie that her former boss condemned violence, acknowledged the certified election results and committed to a peaceful transfer of power to the Biden-Harris administration. The wild false claim was met with almost universal raised eyebrows, including by Kellyanne's own daughter, who told her mother (via TikTok). How do you feel your army is becoming a rebel? Kellyanne, who once invented a terrorist attack in the Bowling Green Massacre, visited Real Time with Bill Maher on Friday night for the season 19 premiere. Kellyanne and Mair have a history of noise dating back to his ABC show Politically Inorrect, and perhaps because it can no longer be helpful, the comedian finally ran a professional interview with obfuscats and liars (between smiles and yuk-yuki, of course). After joking about her inauguration attire, Kellyanne admitted she tried to send a message to Trump on Jan. I wish the president had talked to people earlier to get them out of there, Conway said, adding, I got it. for him. I told the person standing next to them. Please add my name to the people who just say: I don't know what they're doing, why they're there, but tell them to leave. The ugly backing of Ben Shapiro's first film Run Hide Fight then Maher countered: You have to admit that the reason they're there is the reason he never accepted the election. Well, I did it a long time ago. Conway replied, rather untenable. I think the real disappointment for people like me is that in the last two months, let's say that from November 6th to January 6th, no money has been spent mostly on talking about achievements, looking at achievements. He built the biggest economy we had. He built it? Almost a lot was built, fired by Maher, remember to mention that Trump is leaving office, there are 10.7 million people out of work - a number that remain unchanged from December to January, as Trump apparently spends all his time watching cable news, complaining about the election, and yes, encouraging violent attacks on the U.S. Capitol and Congress, including his vice president. Mike Pence Kellyanne, offered more inconclusive defenses of trump's presidency, including that he overused the military (he was never in a staggering strait) and moved the U.S. Embassy to Jerusalem, an empty gesture, if ever there was one. Then she delivered to the kicker: I mean, you can't deny that a lot of people are better off. Well, they're no better now! Maher exclaimed. Many of them are dead. Yes, although Kellan wished Trump the election in the last two months, spent his curiosity about the so-called no-fly zone. It's a shame, really.
